We buy buildings other investors walk past, rebuild them properly, and let them to a standard that keeps them full. These are the last three completed projects, told honestly: what we paid, what we spent, what each building is worth now and what it earns.

CASE STUDY

Northgate

100–104 High Northgate, Darlington

COMPLETED · FULLY LET

Our largest completed project and the clearest picture of how we work. We bought a tired town-centre building for £110,000, sourced off-market direct from the vendor — part-tenanted, damp, with a bare stone cellar and failing render — because we could see what it could become and we knew the demand was there.

£460,000 of development re-engineered the building into design-led studio suites. This was not a cosmetic refresh: the lower ground floor was tanked and insulated, floors re-joisted, and the building rebuilt room by room from the structure out, run by our own team from planning through to completion.

The finished asset was refinanced at £750,000 and produces £109,000 a year in rent — fully let, with lettings and management handled in-house.

CASE STUDY

Station Road

8 Station Road, Darlington

COMPLETED · FULLY LET

Bought for £115,000 — sourced direct from the vendor — Station Road needed more than paint — it needed rethinking. The building was stripped back to the bones, then rebuilt from the frame out: a new roof on new steels, new skylights and a new staircase.

A £122,000 refurbishment brought every part of the building up to the standard we let at. The completed property was refinanced at £320,000 and earns £44,000 a year — fully let and managed by our own team, a few streets from Northgate.

Station Road was delivered by our team through a dedicated joint-venture company, with the project funded by a private investor — the same structure we offer investors today, proven in brick.

CASE STUDY

Alderson Street

33 Alderson Street, Teesside

COMPLETED · FULLY LET

Alderson Street looked liveable at a glance when we bought it for £90,000 — but it was nowhere near a licensable six-bedroom HMO. So we took it back to brick.

£108,000 of works rebuilt it room by room: new stud walls framing the attic bedrooms, insulation and fresh plaster throughout, en-suites roughed in and a shared kitchen fitted — all to HMO licensing standard. Licensing, room sizes, fire regulation: HMO conversion is detail work, and doing it properly is the difference between an asset and a liability.

The finished building is a £260,000 asset letting at £41,000 a year — fully licensed, fully let, managed by our own team.
